Next Steps for Success

- Plan your timing carefully. You worked hard to prepare for this exam, so take a break and refresh. Plan your re-test soon, so you don't lose momentum, but allow yourself some time to decompress first.
- Network with peers. Posting a question or starting a discussion on ProjectManagement.com or LinkedIn can yield new insight that may help direct your preparation to re-exam. Check out this discussion on PMP exam prep, or search for discussions on other topics.
- Consider a study group or mentor. Someone who has passed the exam can provide a wealth of advice. Your local PMI chapter can help you find an active study group or member willing to guide you.
- Find a Registered Education Provider (REP). These trainers are skilled in helping you prepare, so consider courses or boot camps to help you improve your performance.
- Search for online resources or apps. Look for credible practice exams that offer explanations of answers, as well as digital flash cards that allow you to concentrate on specific areas of study.

Exam Breakdown

Domain proportion and performance by target level.
